The coin will be made in 2014, available in 2015. All sales of the coin go to benefit the educational, scientific and environmental efforts of the nonprofit Planetary Resources. Get a closer look at the coin on our web page. View the design on a larger scale on this page: Characteristics Obverse The obverse depicts an all-seeing eye, representing the centaur god Endymion, on a golden background, with a stylized crescent moon above. The head of a robot, representing the robot named Ceres, is to the right of the design. To its left is a map of the solar system. Reverse The reverse depicts a solar system with the Earth in the center, surrounded by the moon, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, arranged in an expanding circle. The name of the coin is shown at the bottom, accompanied by the motto "Shaping the Future of Space" at the top. World The coin's selection of coins reflects the coin's symbolic relationship to the Universe. The first coin in this series, the first element of the 3-coin set, is a medal from NASA, reflecting our world, our place in the Universe, our need to discover new worlds and expand humanity's space presence. The second coin is a small brass sphere symbolizing the particle accelerator that brought the Higgs boson to discovery, representing the other science and technology needed to discover new worlds and expand humanity's knowledge. The third coin is the official third element
